Soviet Will Be Asked

Curzon Demands

(Associated Press.)

London, May 26.—Great Britain has decided that there shall be no break with Russia. It is held in diplomatic circles that while the last note from Moscow is in some respects not wholly satisfactory, the remaining points in the disputes with the Soviet government are susceptible of solution by negotiation.

The government of Prime Minister Baldwin, it is known, desires to begin its career hampered by as few international problems and controversial political issues as possible.

If Leonid Krassin, the Soviet representative here, succeeded in having the Moscow government compromise on Lord Curzon's reiterated demands for the withdrawal of the Russian political agents abroad, whose actions have offended Great Britain, it is believed the British foreign secretary will inform Krassin, when he calls at the foreign office next week, that Great Britain is disposed to discuss with him or another appointed plenipotentiary, the whole subject of Anglo-Russian relations at a conference to be called in London in the near future.

HORNSBY SILENT ON HINE CHARGES

(Associated Press.)

St. Louis May 26.—Rogers Hornsby, champion home run hitter of the major leagues last year, today declined to discuss the case of John A. Hine, automobile salesman, who filed a petition in the court of domestic relations here, in which the star second baseman of the St. Louis Nationals was named as having broken up Hine's home.

Hearing on the petition, which asked that a degree of divorce be granted to Mrs. Hine, 23 years old, several months ago, be set aside on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, was continued.

A love letter signed "Roge" and purported to have been written by Hornsby, was introduced by counsel for Hine. Hine testified that his former wife had admitted to him that Hornsby was the author of the missive and that his attorneys have all the proof in the world that the ball player wrote the letter.

"My attorneys have telegrams which were sent to me by Hornsby's attorney, offering terms to hush up the matter," Hine said in a statement. "If necessary I can bring Hornsby's teammates into court to prove that he wrote the letter. It is not money that I want. It is revenge. Hornsby has broken up my home."

Mrs. Hine, testifying on her behalf, said they were married in 1919, and that Hine had failed to support her.

Y Sunday School
Proves a Success

The early Sunday morning school at the Y. M. C. A. is proving quite a success, according to reports. It is the plan of the promoters of the school to have the Sunday School lesson taught and over with in plenty of time for members of the "Y" school to reach the Sunday Schools of the churches of their choice.

MY VACATION

WHERE, WHEN, AND HOW

"I think Blount Springs, 32 miles north of Birmingham is a lovely place to spend a vacation and we expect to go there the last of June," said Mrs. L. A. Hobart, of West Albany. "The springs have nothing like the buildings they used to have before the big fire there about a dozen years ago, but one new boarding house has been erected, besides many people own cottages there. And some come up from Birmingham and live in tents."

"What little vacation I hope to take this summer" said W. B. Morrow one of the accountants in the office of R. L. Maury at the Louisville and Nashville shops, "will be at Summer, Miss., 96 miles below Memphis. I am going to that Mississippi town in a few days to get my little niece Robbie Lee Brown, whose mother many will remember as Ruby Lane, who married R. L. Brown, of Summer several years ago, but who is now dead. Last year our niece spent the entire summer with my family, and returned to Summer in time for the fall term of school."

"The nearest thing I know to a vacation for me at the present time" said Dr. G. T. Harris, pastor of the Central Methodist church, "is a contemplated visit to Athens soon, where as a member of a faculty of the Epworth League summer school, I am to deliver a series of lectures on the doctrines of Methodism. I hope to take a complete rest vacation later in the summer," added Dr. Harris.

SUNDAY SERMON
AT THE PRINCESS

An innovation as regards church services in Albany in connection with school commencement exercises comes Sunday morning when the school people and their friends will repair to the Princess theatre at 10:45 a. m. where the commencement sermon will be preached and regular church services will occur. A number of the Albany church workers without regard to their church affiliation will assist in the commencement services. The sermon is to be preached by Rev. S. P. Pittman of the avDId Lipscomb College at Nashville.

A number of the Albany churches will suspend services for the Princess meeting Sunday morning including the Central Baptist, the Central Methodist and the Jackson Street Church of Christ.

The following is the program to be rendered: Violin Solo by Miss Alice Hatton. Anthem "Oh Sing Unto the Lord" by choir. Solo "Grateful, Oh Lord, Am I" by Mrs. H. R. Summer.

Invocation Rev. W. P. Reeves, pastor of the Central Baptist church. Quartet "My Task" Messdames McGlathery and Todd, Messrs. Pickens and Burr. Solo "I do not ask of Lord" Mrs. Joe Petty. Scripture reading by Rev. C. H. Woodruff, pastor Jackson Street Christian church. Anthem "They that trust the Lord" by choir. Sermon by Rev. Dr. S. P. Pittman, of Nashville. "All Hail" by Men's chorus. Doxology Congregation led by the choir. Benediction by Dr. S. P. Pittman.

FARMERS WORRIED
BY CROP OUTLOOK

Recent Rains Delayed

COTTON ACREAGE
TO BE REDUCED

Planters Far In Arrear
Of Past Seasons
Reports Declare

Weather conditions Saturday and during the past few days have very materially changed the cotton acreage situation in Morgan County and throughout the entire Tennessee Valley, is the consensus of opinion here.

The determining factor, prominent farmers state, is the fact that recent rains have killed the hope that cotton could be planted this year as late as June 1. It is pointed out that it is practically impossible for the fields to dry now, to a sufficient degree to make them safe for a late planting.

It is pointed out also, that the boll weevil is militating against any further planting of the fleecy staple.

Until the past few days, it was believed here, that fully as large a crop of cotton would be raised in the Tennessee Valley as last year, if not larger despite the long rainy seasons this spring, but opinion rules now, that nothing like the large acreage will be planted as contemplated.

J. W. Clopton, president of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce, was up near the Tennessee line Friday and stated Saturday that farmers told him that not half of the cotton was planted as was expected to be the case.

Sheriff C. E. Poole stated that this information was to the effect that "the farmers were in a much worse condition as regards cotton acreage, than they were this time last year."

W. B. McCullough, former member of the county board of revenue, stated Saturday, that there was bound to be a great decrease in the cotton acreage, and added that he believed such a condition would benefit the cotton farmers, as prices were liable to be better, when it was known that the acreage was decreased from first estimates. D. A. Sloane, county tax adjuster, and an experienced and successful farmer said: "What cotton that is up has grown very little and I understand the stand is very defective." Mr. Sloane thought little cotton could be planted from now on.

Carl Patterson, cotton buyer and planter, about a week ago reported to big cotton men in New York that the crop in this section of the state was 5 per cent above last year. F. F. Tidwell, well known merchant here reported to his associates in New York that cotton was about the same this year as this time last year, but Mr. Tidwell wrote some ten days ago.

FARMERS SIGN THE PLEDGE;
MAY MEAN GEN. PROSPERITY

2278 North Carolina farmers have signed the pledge to "live at home" during this year. The significance of such a promise is apparent. It means that instead of farmers depending on the one crop system, they propose to diversify to the extent of raising all they need to eat and drink on their own farms, with the exception say, of sugar and coffee. The farmers have not taken their new pledge "dry so;" they are promised the aid and cooperation of the "best minds" on farming to be found. This will be advised throughout the year by farm experts. Speaking broadly the farmers who have signed the live at home pledge have undertaken to emancipate themselves from the one crop—money selves. They desire to throw off the yoke placed upon them soon after crop system.

In the first place the land of the farmers who carry out the provisions of their recent pledge will benefit. The land will not be farmed to death, and depleted of its producing substances by being forced to bring forth the same kind of crops year after year.

And when a farmer lives at home he can pay as he goes. He can begin look the whole world in the face as he quits going in debt from one year end to another. In a word the new pledge means that instead of getting to other fellow to "grub-stake" him, the farmer will eat as he goes and pay as he goes.

Nine definite things are said to be required of those who have signed the "live at home pledge," that he will beautify his homestead, add home conveniences, enroll members of his family in corn clubs and similar organizations, improve his farm lands by planting soil building crops such as clover and legumes of different kinds, that an orchard shall be planted and maintained, that a good supply of poultry shall be kept enough to furnish a family supply of eggs and chickens, that enough sheep, cattle and hogs shall be raised to feed the family, and that corn and hay shall be raised in large enough quantities to feed the stock on the farm from year to year.

It will not be a easy thing for such a pledge to be kept. Nothing that is worth while is easy; but if this modern farmer's pledge is kept and thousands of other farmers keep the same kind of a pledge, from a material standpoint from a wealth standpoint the future of the South, and every other section of the nation is assured.

Mellon Finds Way
Out In Dry Tangle

(Associated Press.)
Washington, May 26.—Indications were given at the treasury today that Secretary Mellon had found a way for reconciling the recent supreme court liquor decision with foreign laws requiring ships of other nations to carry liquor as crew rations.

The belief gained ground that the regulations will provide flatly for the barring of all crew rations as such at the three mile limit, but that the ships will be permitted to place such liquor as required by their home laws under the jurisdiction of ship liquor as for medical purposes.

Thus far there has been no limitation fixed on the amounts ships may carry for medicinal purposes.

FIVE GOVERNMENTS
OPPOSE DRY RULE

Positions Apparently In Conflict With Court
Decision

BOOZE ON SHIPS
BASIS OF PROTEST

Attitude Opposed
Ruling Made Known
To Sect'y Hughes

(Associated Press.)

Washington, May 26.—Five foreign governments already have made known to the state department their position in regard to the recent supreme court ruling against the presence of liquor on foreign ships inside the three mile limit. Besides the communication yesterday from the British embassy, the department has received the views of the Spanish government, also in writing, and the attitude of the French, Italian and Dutch governments have been presented orally to Secretary Hughes.

In substance, it was said today at the department, the five countries take the same position in calling attention to the "inconveniences" resulting from the court decision and also point out that freedom of international commercial intercourse is threatened if heretofore recognized practices of comity between nations in this regard are abandoned.

In informal representations to the state department on the ships liquor question, the British government is understood to have taken the position that American port authorities have no jurisdiction in international law to interfere with the bringing of liquor into American waters by foreign vessels as a part of their regular supplies.

A formal communication on the subject was transmitted to Secretary Hughes by Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador. The British position is understood to be based on the construction that the jurisdiction of American officials over foreign ships cargoes intended for importation into the United States in no way extends to ship's stores or rations.

The British view, with its apparent conflict with the supreme court decision, was presented as treasury officials are endeavoring to formulate regulations to carry out the decision and at the same time satisfy the position of foreign governments.

FIRST EXECUTION IN OCCUPIED DISTRICT

(Associated Press.)

Duesseldorf, May 26.—Albert Schlageter was executed by French troops today for sabotage on railroads in the occupied region and other offenses. He was shot in a stone quarry near a cemetery and his body was delivered forthwith to the cemetery authorities. This is the first execution in the occupied zone.

Schlageter was escorted to the quarry by two priests and went unflinching to his death. Ten shots were fired at him.

Besides sabotage, the former Prussian was convicted with arson. He admitted he had blown up railroad tracks and bridges. The French regarded him as a chief of the murder gangs which had been carrying on a campaign of terror against the occupation of the Ruhr.

LOCAL MUSICIANS
VISIT HARTSELLE

The Hartselle Fraternal hall was the meeting place Friday night of a lively company of musicians—some from the town and a number from the twin cities of Albany and Decatur.

Grover C. Graves, President of the Hartselle band and Earnest F. Wittweda, its treasurer, made appropriate addresses of welcome to the visitors. Mr. Graves explained that the members of his band had been financing all the deals necessary to carrying on the work of practice and instruction in the hope and belief that when the band was ready for regular service to the community, the business men of Hartselle would rally to the support of the band.

In speaking for the visiting musicians W. W. Rahm, one of the prime movers of the Albany-Decatur band, said that the hearty welcome given was greatly appreciated and especially the promise of the Hartselle boys to cooperate with the visiting band to the fullest extent. Mr. Rahm explained that as both bands had the same music books and practically the same kind of instruments, it should be an easy matter to assemble the players of both bands into one harmonious company of players. There was double instrumentation on all the large instruments as played last night. The practice of the musicians continued until after 9, when the visitors left for their homes in automobiles.

HOPE FOR PEACE,
YET IN DANGER

No Need For Excessive
Armament Denby
Tells Officials

(Associated Press.)

Newport, May 26.—Warning that the navy must be kept ready for defense "in a world full menace" was given by Secretary Denby in an address today to the graduating class of the naval war college.

"It is a day when naval strength is vitally necessary and a full grasp by naval officers of world possibilities highly important," Mr. Denby said.

"We thing in terms of hope for continued peace. We strive through diplomacy, backed by power, to keep that desired peace, but we must not be blind to facts. We know now beyond peradventure that war between great powers or groups of powers will always involve many other nations, and we cannot say with certainty that such a war may not come at any time. There need be no demand for excessive armament. There will be none for a great increase of our present establishment, made by the navy department at the coming session of congress. We shall ask for additional cruisers, allowed under the treaty for the limitation of armament. We shall ask for additional light draft gunboats, the vital need of which is being demonstrated every day and we shall ask for certain submarines and airplanes.

"There will be nothing extravagant in our recommendations to congress and we hope to be able to keep the proposed appropriations approximately within the limits reached last year. While, therefore, we do not anticipate the need of a great building program we do realize we must be in constant readiness for effective use."

CITY TO SELL NEW ISSUE PRIVATELY

The Albany city council committee, which made a private sale of the recent bond issue of $125,000, will now sell another of the city's bond issues for $100,000, privately, it was announced today.

At the meeting of the Albany city council last night bids for the present issue approximated those first offered for the $125,000; but the council will hold out through its finance committee for a "par" sale for the present issue, such as was secured for the $125,000 bond issue of some months ago. The proceeds from the bonds are to pay off an old bond issue due to be settled July 31.

Following the request of the "City Beautiful" club, and other civic organizations, the Albany city council has agreed to increase the street tax from $2.50 a year to $5.00; with the ordinance providing there for to be put on its final passage at the next regular meeting, it was announced Saturday.

Athens College To Have a New Dorm

The Board of Trustees of Athens College for Young Women held a meeting on Monday, May 21. At this meeting the executive committee of the Board, was authorized to start at once upon the erection of a new dormitory which will double the rooming capacity of the College.

Last May the Board of Trustees authorized the building of a gymnasium. This was completed in the early fall. It joins the swimming-pool which is also quite new. Athens College for Young Women, next to the oldest girls school in the world, has been developing with such rapidity in the last few years that these new buildings have become an absolute necessity in order that she may continue her growth.

WE FAVOR ACCEPTANCE OF HENRY FORD'S BID FOR MUSCLE SHOALS.

NORFOLK IS A FLAPPER CITY.

Virginia Taylor McCormick in The Reviewer says:

Many years ago Norfolk was a sleepy city with straggling streets (they were laid out by cow paths, these streets upon which gentlemen in white linen suits loitered in groups and lifted their cork helmets to hoop-skirted ladies, with lace mitts and side curls), across which some times the tide wandered, leaving a brackish trail and occasional crabs to sidestep back to the mud, oozy with salt and algae, as best they could.

Perhaps it is the enforced drinking of home-brew or bootleg uncertainties that has made Norfolk a flapper, for her hoopskirts and her poke bonnets are gone; her abbreviated nether garment is as narrow as it is short; her face is painted and her hair is dyed, or is it henned?

At any rate the result is garish and she always seems to be putting too much powder on her nose and sipping illicit cocktails and trying to disguise their odor with cheap cologne. Her sleeves are too short, her arms are sunburned and freckled and her frisky bobbed hair seems strangely out of place against the background of her harbor in the evening light.

For despite the fact that chugging steamers rend the air with siren calls, that motorboats race up and down her coast, that airplanes circle overhead like huge noisy dragon flies, there are still silently beautiful sailing vessels with masts cutting the low hanging clouds and grasping stars for top lights.

More often, however, there is a jazz band, accompanied by a horrible discord of jazz songs, whose syncopated echoes make night hideous, and the liquid, stirring plantation melodies have retired to the dwelling place of the hoopskirt and side curls.

UNITY FOR DEMOCRATS.

The Republican rift is the place for the Democratic wedge to enter. In spite of every effort to compose political differences, it is doubtful whether the Republicans can so thoroughly heal the dissection as to present a united front during the campaign. They are at present divided over the world court, which is but a part of the general league issue. It is not certain that the Democrats will insist on league membership as a primary part of their appeal to the people for support although undoubtedly the league will form one of the party planks. Thus the league, instead of being an issue between the parties, will, strangely enough, be a cause of dissension within the opposing party.

It is but poetic justice for the Republicans to be wrecked by the very issue on which they made such an unfair fight during the closing weeks of the Wilson administration.

That party unity is the best foundation for a Democratic victory is the firm belief of William G. McAdoo. No matter what policies the party may adopt nor what candidate it may favor, Mr. McAdoo's wise counsel is that on these points they must present a solid front to the nation and to their political opponents. While abating no whit his conviction that this nation will sooner or later enter the League of Nations, Mr. McAdoo, like Mr. Underwood, believes that partisan politics should stop at the three-mile limit, and that domestic issues rather than our foreign policy should furnish the material for the appeal to the people. In this connection Mr. McAdoo suggests immigration, taxation, government relation to business and other national problems as subjects of the party's best thought and codification.

Of course, there are those who say that a platform is always forgotten as soon as the victory is won, but it should not be overlooked that the memory of the people is getting longer, and that there is a stronger popular tendency to demand a carrying out of election pledges than ever before. Therefore, a proper and practical party platform is an important preliminary to a national campaign, and the utmost care should be exercised in its formation, lest finally there may be embarrassment, such as has now overtaken the Republicans. Indeed, it may hold upon the voters in relation to the record of broken or only partially redeemed pledges.

Like a flash of light into an atmosphere of fog and murk comes the counsel of Mr. McAdoo, and none can gainsay the essential common sense that permeates his plea for party unity.

There is no basis for internal friction within the ranks, for there are no divisions on which there is sharp division. There is no need for a split over a party candidate, for there has been general commitment to no leader. When the test of strength has come and the one emerges victorious over the others, there is nothing to prevent a hearty union of all forces behind the majority's choice. Following such a program the Democrats have an almost open road to public approval and national leadership.—Age Herald.

A Train Of Thoughts For the Sabbath and Other Days

By J. E. Blair

The letters on the keyboard of a typewriter are best found when the fingers reach out from a given point—the little fingers of each hand resting lightly on certain designated keys. Authorities are agreed that the "touch system" of typewriting was an absolute failure until this fundamental principle—the having of a given point to start from—was recognized and practiced. In a word you must start from a definite place and keep in touch with that place, if you ever do anything right or really worth while. In other words the present train of thoughts is expected to take the mind of the reader to the truth:

Start right for "well begun is half done." Applying this truth to religious matters—a bad beginning by the parents of our race meant many difficulties. They did not live by the Bible doctrine. "In the beginning God."

In passing, by way of illustrating the value and comfort in the thought of God's presence, what more comforting prayer did the reader ever hear than some one of the fathers that began with the words: "Oh, God, Thou who hast been our dwelling place in all generations?"

Once more: It is just this matter of having a definite place to start from, and the making of that "place" so to speak, is God Himself. That is the paramount religious consideration. Because good men know this, explains the mighty protest they make against "materialistic evolution."

The mind of the Spirit tells them, that if a law—say the law of evolution is to evolve mankind, the personality of God is rendered unnecessary. And if the Bible wordss: "In the beginning God" created man, are to be made meaningless, then God and His Bible are wiped out of the thoughts of men and men are left without hope. A commendable fear lest evolution teach that our race "came from nowhere in particular," and that consequently we are bound for no particular place, such as heaven is said to be—that causes such men as William J. Bryan to fight the theory.

Whether or not such men take council of their fears instead of the facts in the case—is another story and another argument—but most of the enemies of evolution fight the theory lest it degrade mankind. Also they fight it because of certain implications easily deducted from evolution doctrines that are considered dangerous.

For instance, if it is true a law, as some say, is gradually evolving the race, its individual members are "on the band wagon of progress," so to speak, and need no Divine Savior.

It may be remarked that conclusions we may draw from the theory of evolution or from any other theory, prove nothing. And materialistic teachings will never be accepted by the right minded, any more than a good hater of buttermilk will learn to like the bitter, sour stuff! Right minded people will continue to believe their Maker, who says that God is the beginning and the end! Like St. Augustine, they will make God their final resting place. They will still accept Christ's statement that He is the beginning and the end, Right minded people will seek to start from God, and to stay in touch with Him as they feel their way forward. Nay, they will do more than just stay in touch with God—they will "lean hard upon the arm of the Almighty."

NEWS OF CAPITAL

(Associated Press.)

Montgomery, Ala., May 26.—The first editor of "The Auburn Cadet," Alabama Polytechnic Institute's first scholastic publication resides in Montgomery. Professor R. J. H. Simmons edited the paper in 1886, the year of the change in the name of the institution from A. & M. college as it was known previous to that time.

"The paper was a monthly publication of four pages," Professor Simmons said, "and I was assisted in the editing by C. H. Ross who has been dead now for ten years and who lies buried at Auburn."

Ross later won his Ph. D. degree at Johns Hopkins University. Professor Simmons is well known over Alabama, having served for two years as professor of Mathematics at Montevallo College for Women and also as instructor in the public schools of Geneva, Dale and Coffee counties.

Of the college officials at Auburn in those days, Professor Simmons has many good things to say.

"It was Dr. Leray Brown who was president and he was at that time said to have been one of America's three greatest Mathematicians. The late president C. C. Thach was then in charge of his ability needs no mention, so widely is it known."

"Other instructors of the institution were Drs. Dunklin, Lupton, General Lane and that grand old man, Prof. O. D. Smith," Professor Simmons said.

"It is with pride that I now look upon a fast growing Auburn. Their publications are of interest to me. Their athletic record is also a source of pleasure."

BY DR. McREE
County Health Officer

The fly as a nuisance and menace to public health is such common knowledge, that we have hesitated to call your attention to it, for fear of wounding your finer sensibilities, but have decided that direct your attention to him again.

Please don't think hard of the department for insisting that you work hard on your cow and horse stables, also the chicken house, thoroughly cleaning them each week, and please don't pile but spread, at once on your garden, if you will do this, we will guarantee that you want have to use your swatter but little and if you will keep this up regularly year in and year out, you need not repair your screens, for with destroying breeding places for flies and mosquitoes, why spend your perfectly good coin for so useless an article as screens; but since we have not finished the fight and screens are yet a necessity please don't use wire with less than 16 meshes to the inch, 12 and 14 will keep out the fly, but will not the mosquitoes.

By following these instructions you will get other returns for your money such as, prevention of bowel infections, typhoid fever, colitis, dysentery, etc., these illnesses claim your children by preference, and I am sure you had rather work a day out each week than to the one of your children suffer one hour as a result of one of these preventable maladies.

Those of you who have children this for them because you love the those who have none, please love your neighbor as your self.

Fort Toulouse on the banks of Coosa river was said to have been erected by Bienville in 1714. The of the first is in what is now Elmore county.

We suggest that you translate into actual riding experience the qualities you have always assumed belonged to the Packard Single-Six by right of name and tradition.

You may arrange for this at any time to suit your convenience, personally or by telephone. Select any model, open or enclosed, for the ride.
